Bring people in. Get paid per person.

SafeHarbor pays you to sign up other people for field work on the Chicago mayor's race and other campaigns. You are not paid for a name on a list. You are paid when the person you recruited finishes onboarding and actually works a first shift.

What to pay — and why

Signature pay is $2 per clean signature. A typical first shift is 25 to 40 signatures, so about $50 to $80 in walker pay. A referral has to be worth making, and it cannot cost more than the shift it creates.

When it pays	Amount
Onboarding plus a first shift of 15+ clean signatures	$25
Same person still active after 3 shifts	+ $15
Five recruits who each finish a first shift	+ $50 team bonus

$25 is the right number. It is about half of one ordinary shift, enough to make recruiting worth a conversation, and low enough that a no-show does not get paid. Do not pay for a signup alone.

Who counts

- 18 or older, and able to circulate under the Illinois Election Code.
- Lives in the City of Chicago, or can work shifts inside the city.
- Shows up, takes the 20-minute briefing, and turns in a real first sheet.
- A name with no shift is not a signup. No pay for that.

How to get the names — and confirm they live in Chicago

Canvassing, in plain language

This page goes with the petition sheets. The sheets themselves are added later. Do not use a homemade form. Do not collect a signature until you have the official sheet in your hand.

How to obtain the name and the information

- Ask in person. Campus, sidewalk, door, or a venue that has said yes.
- The voter prints their own name, street address, and city. You do not fill it in.
- They sign on their own line. One person, one line. No signing for a roommate.
- You watch them sign. If you did not see it, it is not your signature.
- Ward and precinct can be left for the campaign if the sheet says so.

How to confirm they live in the City of Chicago

A mayoral petition needs registered voters of the City of Chicago. A suburban address does not count. Evanston, Cicero, Oak Park, and “near Chicago” do not count.

- Ask: “Are you registered to vote at an address in the City of Chicago?”
- The address on the line must be a Chicago address. Check the city name.
- If they are unsure, look them up on the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners voter lookup before they sign, or have them
- No Chicago registration, no signature. Thank them and move on.
- Do not guess a ward. Do not copy an address off an ID unless they write it.

At the end of the sheet

- You sign the circulator affidavit only after the signatures are on the sheet.
- You swear you saw each one. That part is yours alone.
- Turn the sheet in the same day, with a count of lines.
- A bad sheet — copied names, missing city, signed for someone else — is not paid.

What you are agreeing to

- I will only collect signatures I personally watch.
- I will only ask registered voters who live in the City of Chicago.
- I will not pay anyone to sign, and I will not sign for anyone else.
- I will use only the official petition sheets SafeHarbor or the campaign gives me.
- I am an independent contractor. I am paid per the posted rates, after sheets are accepted.
- I understand a bad sheet is not paid.
